

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

The golf tee holder comprises a holder base having a plurality of legs that extend outwardly and horizontally from the center of the said base. At least one of the said legs
5 extends fore of the said base. At least one other of the said legs extends from the left side of said base, and at least one other of said legs extends from the right side of said base. The said base further forms an opening in the center for snugly receiving a golf tee.